SPRING OFFERING 1958

PARRY NURSERIES

SIGNAL MOUNTAIN, TENNESSEE

Because of the very late spring and extremely cold winter, we have not been able to find out just what stock we do have on some of our daylilies, and since so many people are writing in to know our new prices, we are getting out this spring offering so those who prefer spring planting can take advantage of it and get their plants established.

For the most part, plants are listed in price groups. You may select as your bonus plants 25% of your order from the starred varieties. Please also list 2nd choice on your bonus plants. For detailed description of varieties, please refer to our catalog.

WHAT'S NEW FOR 1958

EMILY WALKER (Wood) 28-30" EM..... 25.00

This flower is very distinctive in both shape and coloring. The broad full petals are pinched near the end of the petals and slightly twisted at the tip. The petals are a clear soft pink. The sepals are recurved and lighter in color - a sort of apricot pink, edged in the same deeper pink of the petals. The flower is triangular in shape, wide opening and flaring. The cool green throat which gives the flower such contrast, stays green through the entire day. The habit of growth on the stalk is very graceful and airy with its wide flaring petals. Long season of bloom; repeats, and stays open late evenings.

BETSY NORMAN (Wood) 36" M 20.00

This is a most unusual pastel. When it first opens, the coloring on the petals is a sort of powder blue with the sepals a flesh pink. If the day remains cloudy, or perhaps if grown in the shade, these colors remain, but when it is in full sun, the pink undertones come out and it is flesh pink with subtle shading of bluish tones. The flowers are large and full and beautifully shaped. Substance is wonderfully firm and of satiny texture. Remains open late evenings, has long season of bloom and repeats.

SANDERS WALKER (Wood) 32" M 25.00

This is a flower of pure, rich gold; clear to the heart of the flower. The large open flower is full and round with perfect form, having almost no space between sepals and petals. The sepals are faintly undercast with a rosy glow. The entire flower gives an iridescent sparkle as if reflecting the glow of the sunset. The thick, durable substance is almost unbelievable, for it is as heavy and firm at the end of a hot day as when it first opened. The branching is good. It has a long season of bloom; repeats and remains open late evenings.

NANCY TREADWELL (Claar) 28-30" LM 25.00

Enormous flowers of greenish yellow - not pale or chartreuse, but a clear yellow that seems to have an unusual amount of green in the blending of its coloring. The full wide sepals and petals are heavily ruffled. The flowers are borne on sturdy, well branched stalks and have wonderful substance. The texture is crepy and heavy. The flowers stand up well in the hottest weather. This is one of the finest yellows we have ever seen, and its characteristics make it an entirely 'different' daylily. Repeats; stays open late, and has long season of bloom. Blooms just a little past mid-season.

GREAT SCOTT (Claar) 36" M 25.00

This is one of the largest and one of the showiest daylilies we have ever seen. It would probably be classed as a blend, with subtle blending of gold and antique gold. It is basically a rich, rich gold; very glowing and vibrant, giving the appearance of having been sprinkled with gold dust. There is an antique gold pattern on the petals, forming a sort of halo, and faint dusting of antique gold on the sepals. The flowers are large and full, with petals 2½" wide.
